

Lymphedema-distichiasis affects males and females in equal numbers. Lymphedema develops in males at an earlier age than females. The prevalence of this disorder in the general population is unknown. Lymphedema-distichiasis syndrome may go undiagnosed making it difficult to determine its true frequency in the general population.