

Type I glycogen storage disease occurs in approximately 1 in 100,000 births. The prevalence of GSDI in Ashkenazi Jews is approximately 1 in 20,000. This condition affects males and females in equal numbers in any given population group.