

Central pain syndrome is estimated to affect several million people worldwide. Approximately, 5-10% of individuals who suffer a stroke, 20-40% of spinal cord injury patients, almost 30% of patients suffering multiple sclerosis and an uncertain number with other conditions develop central pain.