

Partial androgen sensitivity syndrome is very rare in the general population. 1 in 99,000 male infants are born with one of the several androgen sensitivity syndrome types, including PAIS. PAIS only affects males, but females can be carriers for this genetic condition.