

Baller-Gerold syndrome (BGS) is a rare genetic disorder that is apparent at birth (congenital). Common features of BGS include a distinctive misshaped appearance of the skull, facial (craniofacial) area and bones of the forearms and hands.