

No laboratory tests exist to make a definitive diagnosis of benign essential blepharospasm. A diagnosis is made based upon a thorough clinical evaluation, a detailed patient history and identification of characteristic symptoms.